Hide and Seek

The Anglo-Saxons were known for hiding animals and faces in their artwork. This amazing brooch from the Museum of Croydon's Anglo-Saxon collection is a great example!

Can you spot anything in the brooch?

HANDY HINT!

Why not try turning the page around? Looking at different angles could help you find different things!

Now it's your turn! Look at the outline of the brooch below and fill in the missing parts with animals, faces, patterns, shapes and symbols. The more the better!
